

Build UK Membership Criteria

To become a Trade Association member of Build UK, the organisation and its members must meet the following Build UK membership requirements. You will be required to submit supporting evidence of how you meet these requirements and details of how to do so will be provided once you have completed the Build UK Trade Association application form.

Member requirements

Health and safety
A company must hold an effective health and safety policy
Industry standards
A company must operate in accordance with relevant industry standards
Insurance
A company must hold adequate levels of insurance as appropriate
References
Before being accepted into membership, a company must produce references
Trading record
Before being accepted into membership, a company must have been trading for a sufficient length of time in order for the trade association to be able to judge its work
Training
A company must be committed to training its workforce

Trade organisation requirements

Articles of Association
A trade association must sign and abide by and be bound by the Build UK Articles of Association
Code of Conduct
A trade association must operate a Code of Conduct with which members are required to comply
Complaints procedure
A trade association must have in place a formal written procedure for handling complaints received against its members
Environment
A trade association must be committed to protecting the environment insofar as is reasonably practical
Health and safety
A trade association must collate accident information from its members on an annual basis and submit it to Build UK
Insurance
A trade association must have valid Employer's Liability insurance where appropriate
Quality
A trade association must be committed to promoting quality and standards